

Tony Gregory

Director

Tony Gregory is one of Europe's leading entertainment, event and music television directors. His credits range from major shows and concert for MTV, entertainment spectaculars for BBC, ITV and Channel 4, and numerous award shows in the UK and America, as well as "big impact" TV moments such as Fatboy Slim on Brighton Beach and huge Big Brother events.

Tony started as one of the UK's youngest radio producers / reporters and went on to become a successful youth TV presenter for four years. In 1994 he won a place in Granada Television's coveted training course for multicamera and went on to direct a number of its entertainment and music formats. In 1997 he founded and was managing director of Straight TV in Manchester which he turned in one of the busiest independent production companies outside London, creating a number of acclaimed TV formats and events for UK and foreign broadcasters.

Tony now specialises as a director of, and creative consultant on, large events and technically demanding live TV output in collaboration with international performing talent, designers and stage directors.
