Sony Pictures Film und Fernseh Produktions GmbH

Sony Pictures Film und Fernseh Produktions GmbH (SPFFP) – f.k.a. Columbia TriStar Film und Fernseh Produktions GmbH - in Huerth is one of the German subsidiaries of the U.S. film studio Sony Pictures Entertainment. SPFFP was founded in 1995, managing directors are Christiane Ruff and Martin Borowski.

SPFFP has become well-known for its sitcoms. Successful formats such as “Nikola” and “Die Camper” have become long-running hits with nine seasons each on German TV. “Ritas Welt” (five seasons) was one of the most successful sitcoms ever.

This “comedy power” branched out to other genres. Apart from sketch-shows SPFFP also produced personality comedy-shows and has thus become one of the biggest comedy producers in Germany.

“The Gong Show”, “The Newlywed Game” and “Jeopardy!” are the game show classics that have been brought to Germany by SPFFP. Next up is “Power of 10”.

However, since 2005 the drama genre also plays a vital part in SPFFP’s business. Thus far, two seasons each of the drama-series “Die Familienanwältin” and “Post Mortem” have been produced, and many more projects are in the pipeline.
